Scatterbrains Scamper To Secure Seats For Terpsichorean Triumph

By John Dempsey

Just one more day and the "Scandals" come off. We've been trying to spy on the rehearsals, but it certainly is a job. The theatre has been so full of one act plays that the review has been rehearsing all over the place... We peeked in on Maxie Ervin, Bob Sawyer, and Tom Wood, however; the Kentucky clan is developing quite a skit. Watch for them when you get to the review... Don Blake, the "rollin' yeoman" from the Navy office, is scheduled to work out a roller skating act with Charlie Gore, a V-12. However, Don took one look at the rough stage floor and is now looking for a plywood slab 18 by eight feet.

Business Manager John Dempsey has run into complications with civilian printers and their troubles during these boom days. He promises a program though... Jack DeLora is all Fifth Avenue with his style show... Wynn Davidson wanted to bring a flaming hoop on stage for the acrobats, but not even cigarettes are allowed on stage. So sorry, Wynn.

Betty Ford is helping Bernie Hoekstra with his all cover girl chorus. If the beauties only looked like Betty—but they'll do... To use a Betty Hutton phrase, Prof. Elden Smith is a vitamin pill with legs on. He seems to turn up at every rehearsal no matter how many or where. Co-operation plus... Bob Bohl has his singers all set... Howard Martin, "The Voice in Khaki," will sing. And he's good!... Bernie Block will present Harry Lawson's script that depicts the latest styles from the Navy's hat fashion centers. The production is definitely a la Pierre... Well, must stop and buy our tickets. We're going both nights. See you there.

Realities of War Told By Thomas

"There is a dry end and a bloody end to this war and we are the dry end," declared Bruce Thomas, famous war correspondent who addressed the Assembly on Monday. He added that our boys over seas say that if we, who are here at home, could see the real side of war, strikes, blackmarkets, and other wartime abuses would disappear.

Mr. Thomas asserted that we need have no fear of Russia. He said that this opinion was shared by other well-known Americans who have visited Europe. He further stated that we should be thankful to the Russians as they

V-12 Seniors Will Receive Certificates

Friday, October 20, at seven o'clock, a commencement program for the V-12 unit will be held in the auditorium. All four-term men will receive certificates for the academic achievement they have made while in the University. The program will be in charge of President Frank J. Prout, and various entertainment features are being planned. Following the exercises in the auditorium the assembly will gather around a bonfire on the parade ground to express informal appreciation and a farewell to the departing Marine Corp and those sailors who are leaving Bowling Green.

Bee Gee Alumni Now Total 6700

A total of 6700 persons have received diplomas or degrees from Bowling Green State University during the past 30 years, according to a report released by Dr. Walter A. Zaugg, chairman of alumni activities.

In this number are 2721 who have completed the requirements for undergraduate and graduate degrees and 3979 who have completed two-year or three-year special courses of study.

The figures were released in connection with the survey of the first thirty years of the University which was completed in September.

Started in 1914 by an act of the state legislature passed in 1910, the University has grown from a one-building institution with an enrollment of 304 to one of Ohio's leading educational institutions with twenty buildings and a peacetime enrollment of 1650 full time students.

Expect 450 New Students To Start Frosh Orientation Events; Classes Start Nov. 2

By John Harris

An estimated 450 freshman students will arrive on the campus Sunday, October 29, for the opening of orientation events, Dean McFall announced.

All new students have reserved rooms on and off the campus. In addition there is a waiting list of about 50 students for housing facilities.

The orientation ceremonies will begin Sunday with a reception for the new students and their families, presided over by President and Mrs. Frank J. Prout. Convocation ceremonies will begin at 4 o'clock. Immediately following this, there will be a buffet supper at Williams and Shatzel Halls. In the evening there will be a party in Shatzel Hall for all women students.

Monday morning, the Freshman students will meet their advisors and register for classes. In the evening from 7 to 9, a reception will be held in the Rec Hall for faculty members and new students.

On Tuesday, fees will be paid in the morning and psychological tests given in the afternoon. A Student Council party will be given in the evening.

In addition to the above mentioned activities for Monday and Tuesday, the Orientation Committee has planned a program for teaching the new students the proper use of the library.

Dean Conklin will address the new students Wednesday morning. Following the address, there will be a conducted tour of the campus and the buildings. In the afternoon there will be two addresses given, one to the men by Dean Conklin, and one to the women by Dean Wilder. A mixed dance, from 7 until 11, will conclude the orientation ceremonies Wednesday evening. All service students are invited.

Classes will begin Thursday morning. An all campus fellowship will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening.

Discussion Is Held Tonight In Radio Studio

Four sophomore women and two men of the freshman class will compete tonight at 7:30 in the Radio Studio for top honors in the second contest in the present series of extempore-discussions.

The topic for tonight is "Would the welfare of the country be best served by the election of Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Dewey?" Dr. John Alden of the Department of History will serve as chairman.

The program will begin with a series of six five-minute speeches.

The second part of the program will be a thirty-minute discussion on the question as a whole with

There will be no Bee Gee News printed next week due to the fact that the staff will be preparing for the final exams.

the six students taking part. The third part will be a brief period for audience participation.

The judges of the speeches tonight will be Prof. F. C. Ogg, Prof. Sidney Stone, and Mr. John Parlette, Principal of the Bowling Green Senior High School. The judges of the discussion will be Prof. Wayne Huffman, Prof. Herschel Litherland, and Prof. Wayne N. Thompson.

The program is presented by the Speech Department as a public service to the community.

Lt. Russell Ferguson

Lt. Russell Ferguson, executive officer of the University's V-12 program, received twenty-four hour orders yesterday afternoon to proceed as commanding officer to the Navy unit at Bloomsburg State Teachers College, Bloomsburg, Pa., a state school founded in 1857 which had a normal pre-war enrollment of about a thousand students.

Lt. Ferguson has been with the Bowling Green V-12 unit as executive officer since its inception in July, 1943, and had from the first promoted a high degree of friendly cooperation between the school and the Navy unit. No announcement was made concerning his replacement here.

Lowell Howard

Jean Harshman, who was managing editor of the Bee Gee News last year, will be editor for the next two semesters. Harshman, a junior, has been working in the editorial department of the Columbus Dispatch for the last four months.

Election Near

The election is less than a month away and many students here will be voting for the first time.

First let us urge everyone eligible to vote, do so. It is just as much a citizen's duty and privilege to vote as it is to buy bonds or carry a gun.

This year in the midst of a war we elect a president. The campaign has already been tarnished with uncalled for mudslinging. But it is the voter's duty to examine the candidate's principles and policies dispassionately.

The choice should be made intelligently rather than emotionally. And above all the vote should be the individual's choice and not that of his family. So let's vote—intelligently.

ARMY DISCHARGES

The latest information on this, is that units not needed for the fight against Japan, for occupation duties or for supply systems and reserve force will be declared surplus. The discharge of men will go by ratings and as a unit and those in that unit with low ratings will be transferred with men of high ratings from other units. This surplus unit will then be returned to civilian life as soon as possible. Every soldier will return to the U.S. for mustering out, except by special requests of individuals who show good reason that it would benefit them to be discharged overseas.

Men already in the Pacific will be relieved as individuals according to their discharge rating as soon as replacements are provided. Individual discharge ratings will be based upon a point system to be announced later. The point credits will be based upon the following factors:

1. Service—Number of months served since Sept. 16, 1940.
2. Overseas—Number of months served overseas.
3. Combat—All such awards as Medal of Honor, Silver Star, Air Medal, Purple Heart, Bronze Stars and other awards for battle participation.
4. Parenthood—Each dependant child under 18 not to exceed three children.

In all theaters, separate consideration will be given to troops in Air Forces, Ground Forces and Service Forces, and Wacs. All female personnel whose husbands have been released will be discharged upon application. Military necessity alone will govern release of officers.

ALLIED PRISONERS-OF-WAR

All prisoners of war captured by us are handled strictly in accordance with the Geneva Convention under which all prisoners may be required to work at any project not directly connected with military operations. Prisoners working for the Federal government are paid at the rate of not less than 80 cents a day and those working for a state or private contractor are paid at a rate to be decided upon between the employer and the prison camp commander. Enlisted men who do not work are given an allowance of 10 cents a day. Officers don't have to work unless they want to.

• News Of Note

Dinah Shore and Spike Jones (and his City Slickers) have just returned to this country from entertaining the boys in France and England under the auspices of the USO-Camp Shows. Spike took the first (and only) civilian band into France. His group played "La Marseillaise" for the first time it had been played in four years in France.

Dinah appeared with Spike at one unscheduled show on the Normandy beach, and despite the fact that no announcement of the show was made, 16,000 men showed up for the performance. They arrived in trucks, amphibious tanks, jeeps, and four merchant seamen even dived off a ship off shore and swam in for the entertainment. Dinah also appeared on shows with Major Glenn Miller, Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, and Edward G. Robinson.

Artie Shaw's new band is expected to debut in a matter of weeks. It will probably be a seventeen-piece outfit similar to his "Begin The Beguine" band. Plans for the band are not set at this writing but Artie expects a radio show before too long and will probably preview the band in the East.

Duke Ellington has written a new ditty as has Victor's latest find, Phil Moore, author of "Shoo Shoo Baby." Duke's tune is "Don't You Know I Care (Or Don't You Care To Know)" and Phil has three on the way now, "I'm Gonna See My Baby," "There'll Be A Jubilee," and "When You Smile." Moore will record for Victor with a quartet known as the "Phil Moore Four."

Anatole France

BY AURELIA CHRISTEA

Barry Cerf brings to his readers in his book, "Anatole France" the qualities of Anatole France, and their influence on his writing. He points out that the point of view expressed in the book is an unusual one in the United States, and that it is in general agreement with some number of the French critics.

Mr. Cerf considers Anatole France from two definite positions: (1) The Thinker, (2) The Artist. Under these two classifications, Mr. Cerf continues with his criticism and very closely delves into first, France's humanism and then into his classicism. Step by step we are acquainted with France, the sensualist—his love of life. Mr. Cerf states that the desire to live is one of the most emphatic affirmations in the works of Anatole France. He goes on to state that France loved life in its brutality, its sordidness, and its stupidity, and more particularly loved it for its sensuality.

Present in the work of France as named by Mr. Cerf, are sensuality, aestheticism, curiosity, detachment, disillusion, skepticism. All these qualities are part of the humanism of Anatole France. In this we find the center of France's philosophy of life—life is meaningless.

This latter statement indicating the center of France's philosophy of life, seemed to be more prevalent in the socialist period of his life, when the aristocrat France, the conservative, made a sweep to the other side to join hands with Emile Zola, to become an apostle of justice, and to become a socialist with all the hopes and illusions of socialism in regard to justice, human worth, human progress, and democracy.

The artistic quality of France centers itself about a devotion to the classical literature of Greece, Rome, and France. Mr. Cerf points out that of all contemporary styles, that of Anatole France is generally declared to be most markedly classic.

France's writing is marked with one of the greatest classic virtues—that of simplicity, yet Mr. Cerf states that the quality of simplicity is not the one which most fascinated France's readers. Rather, Mr. Cerf says, "Anatole France gains his (referring to style results) by picturesqueness, by sinuosity of movement, by richness, color, warmth, suggestion." There is an ironic manner in the writings of France. Because Anatole France tried as did the writers of Alexandria to transport old themes into "a modern form" Mr. Cerf deals with the subject of the artistic France as an Alexandrian.

We are given in this book a short biographical sketch of the great French writer, and while Mr. Cerf is extremely critical of France, he is able to give the reader the qualities of France, and to include within his pages a wealth of material, using quite frequently passages from France's own works, and indicating specific instances of the qualities of Anatole France.

Bluebird are songstress Martha Stewart, radio, motion picture, and bandstand (Glenn Miller, Claude Thornhill) star, David Street, romantic balladeer of the Joan Davis radio show, and Mel Henke, ultra modern pianist who is now being featured with Horace Heidt's band, having recently replaced jazzist Jess Stacy.

The high spirited Falcons romped over the Bishops from Ohio Wesleyan 41 to 0 before a homecoming crowd in the last home game of the season as every Bee Gee player received an opportunity to play.

The Bishops took the ball in the fourth quarter and in five plays marched it from their 10 to the Falcon 19, only to lose it on downs. Pat Mulvihill went through tackle to the 24. On the next play, Mulvihill swept wide around right end only to find his interference too far in front. He then cut over to the left side and raced 76 yards to a touchdown.

Bee Gee At Case Saturday; Next Week at Bunker Hill

The Falcon gridders will hit the road for their last games of the season. This Saturday they travel to Cleveland to meet the Case Rough Riders in Shaw high school stadium under the arcs at 8:15 p.m. The following Saturday, October 21, they meet the Bunker Hill Naval Air Station "Blockbusters" at Peru, Indiana in an afternoon game.

Two Straight For Case

The Case eleven has two wins and two ties to its credit this season. They were held to 7-7 tie by Wesleyan in the opener and was chosen captain in his senior year. In 1940 and '41 he was chosen center on the All-North Dakota State team. George was also active in basketball and track.

After his graduation from high school George attended Valley City State Teachers College for one year as a civilian. While there he was active on the football and basketball teams. On the grid squad he was switched from the center position to tackle, where he performed well enough to be selected on the second All-North Dakota Conference team in 1942. He earned a letter on the cage squad while playing the "tip off" position.

In December, 1942, "Dutch" enlisted in the Marine Corps Reserve and in July of 1943, he reported to Gustavus Adolphus University in St. Peter, Minnesota. George came to Bowling Green in March of this year.

"Dutch" was a "weights" man on the track squad here last spring, tossing the shot put and discus for the Bee Gee's. One of the big thrills of his athletic career was being a "thin clad" on this squad, that went through six contests without a defeat to win the state championship.

At the present time George is taking up geography, but as "pipe dream" he hopes to get into forestry. "My main interest now, however, is in the Marine Corps."

a scoreless tie by Baldwin-Wallace in the second game of the season. Wooster fell before Case 19-0 and last Saturday the Rough Riders dropped Oberlin 18 to 6.

Fleet footed Bill Lund, the Rider's fullback, has been the spark plug in the Case attack thus far. The powerful runner scored all three touchdowns against Oberlin Saturday. Case is also a V-12 school and is plentifully supplied with Navy material.

Bunker Hill Is Powerful

The Blockbusters of Bunker Hill will field a powerful team against the Falcons on October 21. The airmen strengthened by such stars as Vic Schwall, former Northwestern back, and Mal Kutner, former Texas University All-American, rolled over Western Michigan 33 to 7 in the opener.

Their scoring attack is built around the passing of Schwall and the receiving of Kutner. Kutner sparked the Blockbusters last year as they edged the "fighting Falcons" 13 to 12 and remained one of the unbeaten teams of the country.

This contest will close the 1944 Falcon grid season and will be the last game for most of the service members for the duration.

One-Act Plays Get Good Reception By Audience

The student directed plays, "Happy Journey," "Happy the Bride," and "Bedroom Suite," were presented to the University audience last Wednesday night.

Directors of the plays were Pat Miel, Martha Transue, and Dick Herring respectively, and the casts were made up of university students.

The audience reaction to these student directed plays and those presented the Friday before, was one in which appreciation was shown for the effort the students had put in the production of the one-act plays. The comedies were received with enthusiasm, and proved entertaining even when the lines were hesitant and uncertain. The more serious dramas were well produced and effective.

The character roles were well chosen, and the make-up jobs and scene effects were very well done. The plays chosen were suitable for the university audience, and perhaps this was one of the great factors involved in the audience's appreciation of the productions.

The robot bombs have done much greater damage than is generally known, Mr. Thomas told his audience. During a period of 80 days, 14,000 homes were destroyed each day. Thousands of persons have been injured and many are disfigured for life.

"If the Germans had used the buzz bombs two weeks earlier, the invasion would have been postponed at least one month and perhaps even a year," said Mr. Thomas. "England would have lost the British Isles if the buzz bombs had been used a year ago," he added.

Mr. Thomas disclosed that the Germans' aim was to destroy one third of the people by organized underfeeding. Regardless of who wins the war the Germans are going to have strong children.

"We must change the mind of the world by getting tough and staying tough," he said. Mr. Thomas believes that it is impossible to re-educate the Germans because though they are defeated they will still think themselves superior to other people.

Mr. Thomas believes this is the last war. "Nations must hold hands or kill one another," he said. His reason for this belief was that the construction of super buzz bombs, together with the building of bigger and better planes, would make destruction of nations easy.

University Proud of Alumni And Ex-Students In Service of Country

Bee Gee's alumni are serving in every branch of the armed forces, in every theater of war.

The University is proud of these men and women, who are marching in step with Uncle Sam. Speaking of marching in step, the Navy and Marine V-12's who're leaving this month will be sorely missed. Having them on campus has given everyone, faculty and students alike, an added determination to do his best.

Commander Stokes estimates that a thousand men have been trained in the V-12 program since the unit arrived in July 1943. Since that time there has always been a nucleus of 400 V-12's on campus.

Of the thousand men, 253 have been Marines. Eight of these men were sent to other colleges for specialty training in the engineering field. When the unit leaves on October 20, the total number sent to Parris Island in preparation for recruit training will be 150.

The Marine and Navy V-12's are not usually thought of as alumni but in a sense they will be. They have acted in the plays and participated in debates. They have played on the Falcon football, basketball and baseball teams. They have been a real part of Bee Gee.

Alumni Enjoy Week-end Events

Although Homecoming activities were limited this year, as last, the festivities gave the military students an idea of what Homecoming has been in the past, and a limited preview of what it will be in the future. Many of the alumni were back, and seemed pleased that we have carried on the old tradition. Winter students were here en masse, so that the campus had the old pre-war look.

Some things that will be remembered about Homecoming 1944: the Navine band played at the dance on Friday night; the beauty of the queen and her attendants; the beautiful day for the game and the astounding score; the Five Brothers open house; the Alpha Phi banquet; the Delta Gamma breakfast; and the gab fests between the graduates and the current students.

The committees in charge of the plans are to be thanked for keeping up the old tradition in a manner that will be remembered by many for a long time.

Mrs. Ralph Line, sponsors.
